Warmth of Winter White

Frost of Spring Green Poetry Series-Book 4

This time of year as the days grow shorter and winter winds come knocking upon our doors, we can find an enchanting way to spend our down time in Warmth of Winter White, by author and writer Karen Jean Matsko Hood. Hood has the keen ability of an accomplished writer, in bringing a sense of the seasons to us, through the printed verse in her poems. The recurring theme in her work is providing a voice for those whose struggles are ignored. Hood is optimistic in her quest for dignity and social justice, and brings visual impact to her themes on nature. This compilation of meaningful poetry makes you feel the crisp, cold air and frosty outside world of white enter into your mind as, wrapped in your warm covering, you sip your hot drink and ponder upon the verses.

You certainly cannot miss purchasing this book for yourself, family, and friends to add to your libraries as a collectible.
